NEW ASSESSMENT WOULD BRING IN $16,407 REVENUE

Or Local Units Can Lower Rate of Taxes For Same Revenue

The blanket raises imposed by the State Tax Commission on four clasifications of property in Morgan county will bring in additional revenue of $5,220 to the county and $11,187 to the schools, according to a joint statement issued Tuesday by Gov. Wetherby and State Revenue Commissioner Robert Allphin.

Or, the local governing bodies may reduce the tax rates to bring in the same revenue as anticipated under the original assessments by lowering the county rate 10.2; and the school rate 21.8c, Mr. Allphin said in a telegram to the Courier.

The joint statement of Gov. Wetherby and Commissioner Allphin follows:

It was decided today that the policy of equalizing assessments among counties by blanket raises will not be abandoned. The support that has been received since our statement of June 11, 1954, indicates to us that the program will be accepted as it was intended when it was originally proposed.

The reason for the original action to equalize assessments was to implement the foundation program of education for Kentucky, which program was enacted after the adoption of the Constitutional amendment in November 1953, by the tremendous majority which it received.

We would like to make the point that this action by the state tax commission does not necessarily mean an increase in local taxes.

A further consideration should be taken into account by every property owner regarding the tax rate which in final essence determines the dollar and cent taxes he pays. Between now and July 1, the fiscal court or the county school board of any county in which a blanket raise has been ordered may reduce their tax rate so that no more taxes will be paid locally than would have been paid on the original assessment.

Morgan Woman Visits Log Home In Knott After Absence of 53 Years

Visiting her grandfather's log home, the Alvis Draughn house on Trace Fork of Troublesome Creek in Knott county after 53 years, is Mrs. Emma Goodpaster, 75, of West Liberty and members of three other generations of her family. Left to right, Mrs. Elmer Haney, Mrs. Goodpaster, Mrs. L. B. Adkins and children, Lois 3, and Tony 5. The Draughn house is believed to be the oldest in Knott county and a picture of it was recently published in the Courier-Journal. Seeing the picture inspired Mrs. Goodpaster to visit the old home.

Mrs. Emma Goodpaster, 75, of West Liberty, moved with her family from Knott county to Morgan in 1901, and she hadn't been back since—till last month.

"I'd always wanted to go back and see my kin folks," she often times said.

A picture of her grandfather's log home, the Alvis Draughn house, on Trace Fork of Troublesome Creek near Hindman, printed in the Courier-Journal last month, proved the inspiration or nostalgic urge that sparked the trip back to the scenes of her childhood.

The photo was taken by the Courier-Journal's Gerald Griffin who covers the Mountains for his paper. He described it as "the oldest house in Knott county."

When Mrs. Goodpaster and her daughters saw the photo, they immediately planned a trip back to the old girlhood home of Mrs. Goodpaster. Making the trip were Mrs. Goodpaster and her two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Haney of West Liberty, and Mrs. J. D. Day of Bradenton, Fla., and Mrs. Haney's daughter, Mrs. L. B. Adkins and two children. They

Property Tax Receipts Needed For Licenses

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 24—Every person who purchases a Kentucky motor vehicle registration or license plate is now affected by a law which was passed by the 1954 General Assembly. This law requires that evidence be shown the county clerk that personal property tax was paid or that no tax was due before vehicle registrations may be issued.

Evidence of payment may be shown by presenting the county clerk with a tax receipt, or a signed statement from the sheriff or tax-collecting official indicating that tax was paid. Individuals who failed to list taxable property should list such omitted property with the county tax commissioner immediately.

Persons who did not own taxable property as of the assessing date are required to obtain a signed statement to that effect from their county tax commissioner before registering their vehicles.

The law applies to city as well as county and state property taxes. Receipts or statements are necessary from city officials as well as county officials in such instances.

MAYOR WELLS IS SPEAKER AT DIST. WELFARE MEETING

Mayor J. B. Wells, Jr. of Paintsville, speaking to the Tenth District Welfare Association here last Friday evening, urged welfare workers to "innoculate in the minds of the parents the importance of teaching their children the responsibilities of citizenship."

"Parents who receive public assistance and welfare aid should be led to the desire to teach their children to respect the rules of the community, to go to school and church and to follow good moral habits, and thus become able to accept the responsibilities of citizenship in a democracy," Mayor Wells said.

Declaring that we must accept the responsibility of helping those who cannot help themselves, Mayor Wells said it is a further duty that we lead the parents to teach their children the responsibilities of citizenship so that they too will not grow up to become public charges."

Forty-three welfare workers and interested citizens from seven counties attended the meeting, which was held in the Methodist church here. The Margaret Stacy Guild served dinner to those attending.

Dr. Alec Spencer, in introducing Mayor Wells, recounted many recent imporvements in Morgan county. "It used to take me four hours in a Jeep for an average country call, but now we have good roads into all parts of the county and I only use a Jeep to go hunting or fishing," he told the visitors.

Paintsville's delegation extended an invitation to hold next month's meeting at Paintsville, which invitation was accepted.

Miss Geneva Splane, secretary, reported the association now has 45 members. She said the association was not for welfare workers alone but that anyone interested in the welfare of the people of this section is invited to join.

Morgan countians attending the meeting were James Day, Fred Little, Mattie Grigsby of the local office of the Department of Public Asistance, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Jones, Dr. Alec Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Potter, Mrs. C. K. Stacy, Earl W. Kinner, B. E. Whitt and Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Meyers.

DAIRY GROUP TO PROMOTE SALES

A Morgan County Dairy Committee was formed at a meeting in the county agent's office Tuesday night to help farmers of the county take part in a dairy promotion campaign. The effort is part of a state and national campaign by producers of milk and cream to increase the consumption of dairy products and reduce the costs of production and marketing. Harold Rose of Ezel is chairman of the Morgan county committee. Charles E. Cecil of Hazel Green was chosen secretary with C. S. Jackson of Ezel assistant.

The last legislature passed a law setting up a Kentucky Dairy Commission and providing for producers to vote on a check-off system to finance a program of research, education and advertising for dairy products. In the past a voluntary check-off system has been used during June or June and July whereby, with the consent of the producer, a deduction of two or three cents from each 100 pounds of milk was made by the dairy industry. This brought about $90,000 in Kentucky. Eighty percent of it was sent to the

Rules For Operating Pool Were Set Up At Meet This Week

Good news to residents of West Liberty and Morgan county is announcement that the swimming pool is scheduled to open to the public the holiday week end of July 4.

"Should things go well," said Dr. Spencer, chairman of the pool committee, "work on the pool will be finished by next Wednesday." That would give workmen a day or two to clean up around the premises and get the bath house ready, Spencer said. The pool should be ready to open Saturday, July 3.

The pool, when completed, will be as modern and convenient as any in East Kentucky. The pool itself measures 40 by 80 feet, and reaches a depth of nine feet at the diving end. One diving board has been ordered and should arrive by opening date. The space between the bath house and pool has been concreted as has the 12-foot space between the pool and fence on the south side. The oher two sides, however, were "fills" and in order to let the dirt settle, no concrete will be poured here until next year. In the meantime, board walks are being constructed to cover these two sides so swimmers can sun bathe or walk around the pool.

Rules For Operation of Pool

At a meeting of the swimming pool committee Tuesday evening in Stamper's Restaurant, rules and regulations for operating the pool were set up. Dr. Spencer and members of the committee want it understood that the rules are tentative, and are subject to change if neccessary after the pool has been put in use—

The price of admission to the pool was set at 20c for children and 40c for adults. Any time a swimmer goes outside the gate at the pool, he must pay the regular price of admission to reenter. No extra charge has been made for swimming on holidays, as is the custom in some pools. Swimming parties may be arranged by clubs, organizations, or individuals who wish to entertain with a party at the pool. Regular admission price will be charged.

Anyone 15 years old or under or any person who is a high school student will be admitted to the pool for 20c.

No child under 10 will be allowed in the pool unless accompanied by parent or responsible adult. Person responsible for child must be at least 18 years of age.

Swimming classes will be conducted at the pool between 9 and 11 a.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Those who want to take lessons, may enroll in a swim class during these hours for the regular price of admission. On these four days the pool will open for general swimming at 11 a.m. and remain open until 6 p.m. On Friday and Saturday no swimming lessons will be given and the pool will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. On Sundays the pool will open at 1 p.m. and remain open until 5 p.m.

In case of electrical storm the pool will be cleared immediately.

The committee states there will be no roughness of any kind or pranks, and should the pool manager deem it necessary, anyone guilty will be evicted from the pool.

Plans are being made for underprivileged children to have use of the pool.

Soft drinks, candy and chewing gum will be sold at the concession stand in the bath house.

Swimming pool manager, gatekeeper, concession operator and life guards will be announced by the pool committee next week.

The committee, set up to regulate operation of the pool, is composed of representatives of the church and civic organizations in West Liberty. They are Dr. Alec Spencer, Mayor Alvin Evans, J. Wendall Nickell, Ralph Walter, W. G. Ratliff, W. Major Gardner, Stanley Blair, Mrs. L. C. Long, Mrs. Herbert Wells and Mrs. Henry L. Stacy.

McCARTHY-ARMY HEARINGS SHOWED JOE'S SINISTER AIMS

(New York Times)

Senator McCarthy has demonstrated beyond any possibility of doubt that he has no respect for, even if he has any understanding of, the American system of government, based as it is on the separation of powers . . . He has demonstrated his contempt for the executive branch . . . by open invitation to all Federal employees to disregard the law, violate their oaths of office, to ignore all rules and regulations in bringing information to him . . . The conclusion is that Senator McCarthy as a legislative official of the United States was using—and gives every evidence of intending to use—his high position to undermine the structure of this Government for his own purposes under the guise of fighting Communists and Communism.

BEEKEEPING IN ELLIOTT COUNTY

(From Elliott County News)

We have said previously that in roads and farms no county in Kentucky is making more progress than Elliott. Through farm and educational programs, Elliott countians are developing leadership in rural boys and girls.

Just recently another project has been started in the county that, if continued, will strengthen the county and its future still more. This is the beekeeping project.

Here in the hills and slopes of Elliott and adjacent counties, native wild plants and flowers afford an important source of nectar to the bee industry. In abundance grow the sourwood, the poplar, black locust, maple, clover, redbud, golden rod and other plants that will constitute a honey yield of importance and delicious flavor. Alma Robison Higbee, native Kentucky poet, pens words also about the flavor of honey from buckwheat blossoms and about "wild honey caught on dusty golden wings."

What could well turn into a mountain craft is the honey industry in this section. Put in attractive jars, labeled with something like, "Wild Honey from the Hills of Eastern Kentucky," and sold at farm stands alongside the highway, we think the income received would make a handsome figure.

STIFF CONTROLS SET FOR FARMS

WASHINGTON, June 21—Agriculture Secretary Benson ordered a 12.7 percent slash today in wheat output and imposed what are probably the stiffest across-the-board farm controls in history to curb mounting crop surpluses.

Simultaneously, the House Agriculture Committee approved a new "two-price" plan for wheat that would push up domestic prices but save taxpayers millions of dollars in export subsidies. Chairman Hope (R., Kan.) said he did not think it would mean higher bread prices.

Benson, who said he had acted "with regret," set a national wheat quota of 55,000,000 acres for next year—the smallest permitted by law—and predicted that tough wheat-production controls would be necessary into 1956 and possibly beyond.

He also set up a strict new program to make sure that land taken out of wheat, corn, cotton, and other surplus crops is not planted in other crops piling up in Government warehouses. The farmers who do not abide would lose federal price supports.

Farmers will be asked to vote next summer on whether they want the "two-price" plan put into effect on the 1956 wheat crop. Under the plan, farmers would be guaranteed 100 percent of the "fair" parity price on wheat sold domestically but would have to accept the going world price on wheat sent abroad.

The Government now guarantees farmers 90 percent of parity on their over-all crop and pays a subsidy on export wheat. The taxpayers' tab for the subsidy program is expected to total about $56,000,000 this year.

He estimated his new over-all production control plan, known as the "cross compliance" program, will remove about 10,000,000 acres from production on top of 30,000,000 acres idled this year by individual crop-control programs.

He said the plan will require farmers to stay within production bounds set by the Government on all their crops to be eligible for price-support guarantees. Farmers now may exceed allotments on one crop without forfeiting supports on others.

Benson said that in addition to meeting the "cross compliance" test, the nation's largest farmers also must comply with an over-all ceiling that will be imposed on their output. Farm-state lawmakers believe a cut in both support levels and acreage would be a crippling blow to farmers.

Soil Conservation District News

N By BERLYN BROWN
Soil Conservation Service

The construction of diversion channels, terraces and sod waterways in the district is still in its infancy insofar as their widespread use is concerned. However, many district cooperators are seing the need for them and are having them constructed on their farms. Eight years ago there were very few tile drainage systems in operation in the county but now there are more than one-third of a million feet of tile in operation in the county. Farmers have seen the immediate results of a well designed and installed drainage system and they know how they have made highly productive land from areas that in many cases was under water the year around.

Now the results of the effectiveness of a properly designed system of water disposal practices—namely, terraces, diversion and sod waterways—are not usually as quickly discernable as a tile drainage system but they are none-the-less valuable.

In driving in this county and in Elliott, Carter, Boyd and Lawrence counties last Friday I saw some good examples of severe sheet and rill erosion as a result of the heavy rains that hit many sections of Northeastern Kentucky last week. Much of this serious erosion could have been prevented had they applied the proper water control practices. Not all areas are adaptable to the use of diversions or terraces due to lack of proper outlets, uneven or broken terrain, etc., but contour cultivation and the establishment of sod water ways in natural draws would prevent a large portion of this "creeping paralysis" of our agricultural land that we call sheet erosion. Many hundreds of acres of smooth, rolling, hill land and toe slopes in this county are almost non-productive because all the top soil has been washed away by this type of erosion. A five-plow cultivator or rastus plow will do a good job of filling in and hiding these little gullies but they won't replace that top soil, organic matter and fertilizer that went down the hill and covered up other plants and filled in ditch lines or washed out on the highway. Acres like these we often miscall "worn out" fields. With erosion conditions like these continuing to exist and our national population increasing at the high rate it now is, surplus farm products that are so troublesome now will be past history in the not too distant future.

Now I would like to quote Mr. Dillard Murphy, Ezel, Ky., chairman of the Morgan County Soil Conservation District, on the use of water control measures:

"I had a diversion ditch and waterway constructed on my farm last spring by our SCS technician, Mr. Brown. "I had plowed this piece of land in 1946 for tobacco and the heavy rains washed the land so badly that I had to work on it eight years to build it back so it would produce tobacco. Last week we had a week of hard rains, and with this same piece of land set in tobacco it didn't wash any at all. The diversion ditch and sodded waterways protected it. I recommend that any farmer having rolling land or land at the foot of slopes consult with our district SCS technicians about water control practices before plowing this type land."

DOG CONTROL LAW IN EFFECT

Kentucky's new rabies-control and dog-control law became effective last week, and steps are being taken in the various counties to set up the program in accordance with orders sent out by the State Health Department.

The task, however, can hardly be completed before July 1.

The law resuires vaccination of all dogs six months old or older by July 1 of each year and sets up other procedures for licensing and controlling dogs.

The State Health Department can extend the time for vaccination to once every three years and it has ordered a new-type vaccine effective for three years, to be used at the proposed vaccination clinics. It is expected to recommend to the State Board of Health on July 22 that the period be made three years for dogs getting the new type vaccine.

Owners are responsible under the law both for vaccinating and licensing their dogs. The law also provides that the State Department of Health may set up clinics for vaccinations at not more than $1.50 per dog. Veterinarians giving private shots may charge whatever they wish.

The law also provides for issuing of licenses by dogs wardens to be employed by each fiscal court on or before July 1, 1954.

The local Health Department has been directed by the State Health Department to do the following:

1. Conduct an education campaign to acquaint their counties with the law.
2. Plan, set up and advertise rabies-immunization clinics.
3. Cooperate with other local officials, including the dog warden, in confining dogs that have bitten persons or other animals and suspected of having rabies.
4. Cooperate with other local officials in controlling stray dogs.
5. Report to the State Health Department each week the number of persons bitten by rabid or possibly rabid animals.
6. Help people prepare heads of killed animals suspected of having had rabies to the State Health Department laboratories.
7. Be certain that human rabies vaccine for Pasteur treatment is available for persons bitten by rabid or possibly rabid animals.

CROCKETT FARMER GETS $1000 PROFIT PER ACRE FROM STRAWBERRY CROP

Joins County Agent In Warning Against Poor Quality Plants

Hobert Cassity, Crockett, again this year earned $1,000 per acre net profit from strawberries. This was borne out in figures he gave County Agent Charlie Dixon today.

From less than six tenths acre of two-year old plants, Mr. and Mrs. Cassity sold 106 crates of berries for $712.17. They used at home and gave away 60 gallons valued at $45.00, making a total gross income of $757.17.

Their expenses were $25 for fertilizer, $32 for crates, $100 for labor and $25 for hauling berries, making total expenses of $182. The income above cash expenses amounted to $575.17 on .55 acre.

Warning To Farmers

Mr. Cassity joined Mr. Dixon today in the firm belief that Morgan county farmers should be growing at least 100 acres of strawberries for market. However, both agred that things are happening in the county that will be a serious setback to such a program. They listed these conditions as follows:

1. Farmers are being "sold" the wrong varieties. Many are buying so-called "Ever-bearing" varieties. Under average farm conditions they are more nearly "never-bearing." Most of them are also of inferior quality and are completely unsuited to the kind of marketing program we must use. Tennessee Beauty and Blakemore are the best varieties.
2. The plants are costing too much. Under standard buying practices, the best plants of these varieties cost up to $12 per thousand this year. Farmers of Morgan county are already being "sold" plants at $20 per thousand and up. Why do farmers let a salesman "sell" them something instead of getting sound information from their county agent?
3. Farmers are buying plants to set this summer and fall. Four-fifths of the plants set in the summer will die under average weather conditions. Plants set in the fall will not be any better than spring set plants, will need to be mulched and will likely have some kill from the winter freezes. The time to set strawberries in this area is March. A program will be launched this fall to help farmers order reliable plants at reasonable cost to be delivered in March. Wait for this program.

Farmers who carelessly fall into these traps and find their costs too high and their crops a failure will do more to hurt the evpansion of the highly promising strawberry industry than twice as many successful growers can offset. See your county agent if you want to grow strawberries. Do it right so you can make a good profit and be happy with the project.

ATTEND MEETING

David Adams, conservation officer for Morgan county, Austin Hill, clerk, and Walter Blevins, sanitarian, attended the district meeting at Grayson Thursday. Thos. Theobold, present district conservation officer, was nominated for the same office, receiving 77 votes. Second highest was Sid Calk. From a list of names submitted in this manner, the district officer is appointed.

ASSESSMENTS

A result of the hearings and the close study we have given to this whole problem during recent weeks, we have been impressed by the fact that no one has questioned the fairness in the state's effort to equalize among counties general property assessments at the 31% figure, but stems from the inequality that exists between taxpayers in the same county whose property has not been equalized by the local county tax commissioner or local board of supervisors.

Where these unjust inequalities exist, every aggrieved property owner should feel free to call upon the tax commissioner and seek an adjustment for future years. It is evident that the tax commisioner and the board of supervisors of many counties have been grossly negligent in this regards.

Action by the state would have been avoided had local assessment officials performed their duties adequately.

The assessment for Morgan county will be raised $745,832.00, which will be an increase in revenue of $5,220.82 at your present rate of 70c.

If Morgan county decided it doesn't need the $5,220.82 in additional revenue, the fiscal court can cut the tax rate 10.2c, giving a new rate of 59.8c, and this new tax rate would produce the same revenue as anticipated under the original assessment.

Your school revenue under the new assessment will be increased by $11,187.48. If the school officials decide they do not need the increased revenue, they may have the fiscal court cut the tax rate 21.8c, giving a new school tax rate of $1.28, and this new rate and new assessment would give the same revenue as under the original assessment.

Dumping Of Garbage Not Permitted Except At The City Dump

The City of West Liberty again wishes to call attention of city residents that it is a violation of State and City laws to dump garbage from the city anywhere other than at the city dump. Some West Liberty residents, it is claimed, have been dumping garbage on the head of Long Branch instead of at the city dump near the Elkfork bridge. This is in violation of State laws and city ordinances, and they will be enforced in this respect.

STATE TO BUILD 50 ROOM LODGE AT CARTER CAVES

The Kentucky State Park Commission plans to spend $600,000 at Carter Caves State Park, most of the money to be used in building a modern 50-room lodge, it was announced in Frankfort last week. The appropriation will be financed with a revenue bond issue.

Lack of recreational facilities, principally water, has been the major deterrent at Carter Caves. But the State has recently completed construction of a 45-acre lake for swimming, boating and fishing, and all that is needed now is more rain to fill the lake.

With the heavily populated tristate area to draw from, Carter Caves Park can become one of the state's largest. It won't surpass Kentucky Dam Village, Kenlake and Cumberland Falls in attendance, but it can get in their class. Further, Carter Caves can, if proper facilities are provided, be self-sustaining.

The fact that the $600,000 is to be financed by revenue bonds indicates that Commissioner Henry Ward is aware of the potential at Carter Caves. He has been working on this for many months and there appears hope the bonds will be sold.

In natural beauty and native scenery Carter Caves is unsurpassed by any of the 24 State Parks. Further, it is in a vast section of the state that doesn't have another state park. It should be developed and we are convinced the issuance of the $600,000 in revenue bonds is a proper move by the state of Kentucky.

IN MEMORY OF MIRIAM HOLLAND

Who was born Feb. 8, 1947 and departed this life July 19, 1952, at the age of 5 years, 5 months and 11 days.

While living here in Dayton, O. the Lord sent us a lovely daughter to brighten our lives for a while. To her we gave the name of Miriam Earline. We got to keep her with us only five short years, and then she was called away. While we grieve for her, we hold no bitterness in our hearts toward the dear Lord for taking her from us, for we know she is happy with Him. All our memories of our precious daughter are pleasant. She started her young life singing and talking about Jesus, and the smile of heaven was upon her.

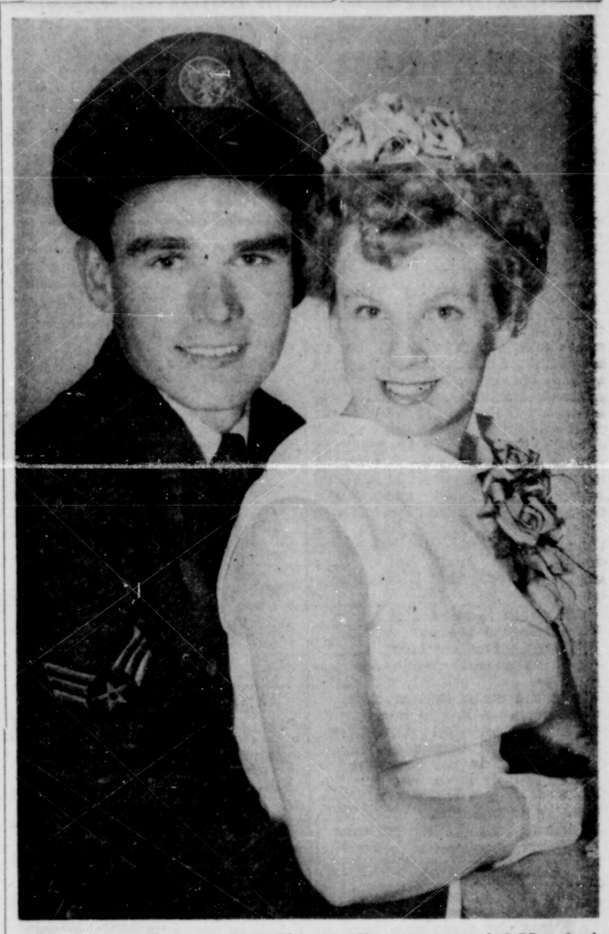

From the beginning she loved everybody and they loved her. She loved her Mama and Daddy, sister and brother, and made friends with all who knew her. Therefore, we think we have a right to be proud of her and are grateful that we had her with us for five short years to love and cherish.

We, her parents and little sister and brother, will always miss her throughout the years we live on earth.—Sadly missed by Mommy and Daddy, Daisy and Roger Holland. (Written by her aunt, Lucy M. Day of Dehart, Ky.)

The angels came with silent footsteps
And took your darling child away,
But by the grace of God you can meet her
In heaven some sweet day.
God needed another little flower
To bloom in his garden so rich and rare,
And so He took your little child
Because she was so sweet and fair.

Last week's column contained the first draft of a poem about the earth which was to be no more than sixteen lines long and was to be submitted to The Progressive Farmer as an entry in a poetry contest. However, the first draft turned out rather crudely. It was far longer than sixteen lines. It was a mess of marks and scratches. It was an itemized list of unorganized thoughts. The second draft which was written chiefly with the thought of boiling the poem down wasn't much better than the first except that it was shorter. Here it is:

The earth is alive . . .
the streams are her veins.
the trees are her hair;
the lakes and oceans are her eyes.
It is the earth that matters,
The answers lies in her.
Root-pierced and plow-torn and torn by bombs of war—
yet she holds the answers;
yet she puts forth life.
She does not weep—
she is no pessimist.
Time has taught her patience
and persistence—
Wherever life is cut down,
new life springs up.
The life is in her.
She is stern and demanding;
All that she gives goes back to her.
She is generous and beautiful
She gives all but wastes nothing
Our dust is her dust—
Her soil contains the dead of centuries
She knows what we are for
and where we are going.
All life is in her
And springs up in a million forms forever.
The earth holds the answers.
Perhaps if we learn to live by her laws;
Perhaps if we send our roots into the land and reach forever upward.
Perhaps she will give us the answers
Perhaps . . .

When the lines were down, I went through them again with the scissors of critical thought and began to cut and rearrange the items. The lines were still unorganized. The poem was still crude, and it was still too long. I decided to remedy that last fault, at least, by making the lines longer. I titled the poem, THE EARTH, and arranged it in sixteen lines like this:

THE EARTH

The earth is alive . . . The streams are her veins.
The trees are her hair. The lakes and oceans, her eyes.
It is the earth matters. The answers lie in her.
Root-pierced, plow-torn. and torn by bombs of war,
Yet she holds the answers; yet
she puts forth life.
She does not weep. She is no pessimist.
Time has taught her patience
and persistence—
Wherever life is cut down, new life springs up.
She is stern and demanding,
all that she gives Goes back to her. She gives all but wastes nothing.
Our dust is her dust. Her soil contains the dead
Of centuries and the seed of future generations.
She is generous and beautiful.
She knows what we are for
And where we are going. The earth holds the answers.
Perhaps if we send our roots into the land and reach Forever upward. Perhaps she will give us the answers.

Well, there it was at last in sixteen lines, and there was even a hint of meter in some of them, though no rhyme as yet. The rules of the contest said that the poem may be in rhyme or free verse. So far, if it was anything at all, it was free verse. But I had to decide what it was going to be. Besides, the poem definitely needed a great deal of working over. I took up a pencil and began to make more marks. But since there isn't enough space left, I'll tell you what happened next week.

HOUSE PLAN No. 41

HOUSEWIFE'S DELIGHT

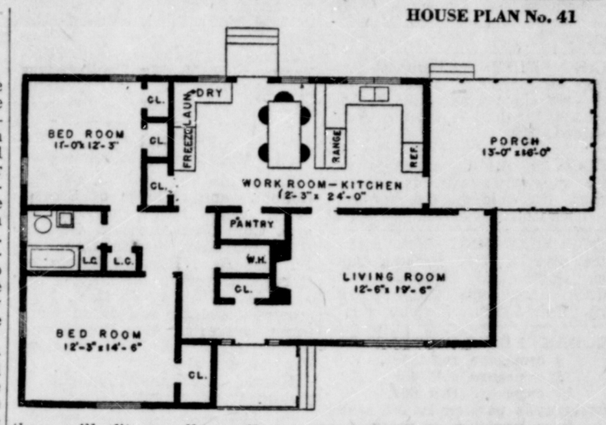

The housewife likes a chance to visit with the family while she does her work in the kitchen—but they mustn't be constantly in her way. So here is her special kitchen, with adequate space for meal preparation, laundry equipment, freezer chest and a large area for the kitchen table on which to serve the family meals. The meal-preparation area is arranged so that there will be no traffic through it. We also have provided a large pantry for dry food storage in addition to the freezer chest.

The porch, which is equally accessible to both the kitchen and living room is an excellent place to relax on hot days or evenings in the summer, or to serve the family meals. At the same time it gives the housewife a comfortable place to sit and shell peas, etc., during the summer, and yet be near her work area. She has a view from at least three directions so that she can see what is going on about the place.

An abundance of storage space is incorporated in this FARM & RANCH House Plan No. 5141.

If you prefer a basement or central heating plant, we suggest that you use the space allotted to the pantry, water heater, and closet and arrange it to provide a basement entrance. Or you may use a portion of this same space to house a heating plant.

The lines and exterior treatment of the house have been kept simple but are such that they will fit equally well into almost any setting. You will find the construction cost of this house to be reasonable in that all the materials and millwork are standard stock items that can be purchased at any building material dealer.

You can obtain blueprints for this FARM & RANCH House Plan No. 5141 and a handy list of materials by which you can figure your construction cost accurately. Send $1 to Building Editor, Farm & Ranch-Southern Agriculturist. Dept. E-89, Nashville, Tenn. Order by number—Plan No. 5141. Blueprints are adequate for any farm carpenter or for any farmer handy with tools.

FISHING - - NEWS - -

Bernard Whitt, Fishing Editor

Ben Allen was in town Thursday and said that Kelly Whitt was staying out of the river because he has a bad lag and is afraid. Sheriff Aaron Lykins said he was at Kelly's home the other day and Kelly told him the same.

Ed Cantrill said that Betty Caskey, daughter of Avery Caskey of Lick Branch, said they had a duck that had laid 116 eggs without going to setting. Jeff Williams said he believed the story since he had a hen one time that laid three eggs in one day. This is printed in the fishing column in order to avoid possible legal prosecution.

Norman Allen of Prestonsburg, Chas. Goble and his brother, Snooky Goble and Chalmer Allen were fishing at Dewey Lake Saturday evening. Norman got two too small to keep; Chas. did not get even a strike; Chalmer got four large ones. The report was made by Chalmer Allen, which ought to prove something or other.

DAIRY GROUP

American Dairy Association for research and advertising. The rest was used in Kentucky for newspaper, magazine and radio advertising. The American Dairy Association is now sponsoring a national television program to promote the sale of dairy products.

Between 1939 and 1953 the total amount of all milk consumed per person in the United States declined eight percent. This may affect the health of our people as well as add to the surplus problem of dairy products.

Under the new Kentucky law, a referendum will be held. If a majority of all producers vote for it, a maximum of two cents will be deducted from the checks for each 100 pounds of milk and one-half cent per pound of butterfat from cream checks to finance the program of dairy product advertising, research and education. The county committee is charged with making preparation for the referendum and informing producers about the program.

VISITS OLD HOME

spent the week of May 23-28 visiting relatives in Knott and in Letcher. (Knott was a part of Letcher in Mrs. Goodpaster's childhood days.)

"This time I got to see some of my cousins, a half brother and two half sisters," Mrs. Goodpaster told friends. Her half-sisters are Mrs. Ollie Hurt of Bulan and Mrs. Ida Bays of Jenkins. The half-brother is Joe Draughn of Whitesburg. They also visited a number of cousins and other relatives.

"Half of my grandfather's old home was standing, but half of it had been torn away. I was born in a log house just across the creek, but it has been torn down; even the apple orchard is gone," Mrs. Goodpaster said.

But her grandfather Draughn's house brought back many happy memories, for she lived with her grandparents while a small girl.

Mrs. Goodpaster's mother died when she was one year old, and she was taken to live with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Kelly. And when she was nine years old, the Kellys moved to Chambers Station in Menifee county near the Montgomery line.

Mrs. Goodpaster remembers she rode horseback to Menifee and it took three days. "That's one time I got enough riding," she said.

Then when she was 14 she went back to Knott county with the Kellys and stayed a few months visiting. They rode horseback that time, too, she remembers.

She married in Menifee when she was 21, and shortly afterward she and Mrs. Goodpaster and the Kellys moved back to Perkins Branch in Knott, intending to settle there. "But we didn't like it then as well as we thought we would, and we didn't tarry long." They moved to Morgan in 1901, settling on Phills' Branch.

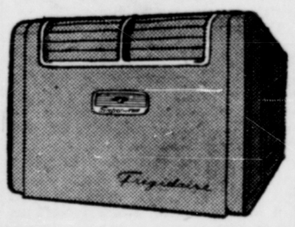

"We shipped out things to Jackson, when we moved back to Knott, and we drove through in a covered wagon. We were held up from Friday till Monday by snow in Breathitt county. My oldest child, Willie Goodpaster, was very young and we didn't want to take him out in the cold. We stayed at Johnny Thomases in Breathitt until it warmed up."

Traveling was arduous in those days, but Mrs. Goodpaster and her daughters made the trip by motor last month in about two hours. On their return they came by way of Jackson. "I hadn't been in Jackson since Carrie (Mrs. Haney) was a baby. They had kerosene lamps for street lights then. It's much different now, and the town has many new buildings," she said.

Despite her age, Mrs. Goodpaster enjoys quite good health. She suffered a bad burn on her foot when a child and last year she fell and broke a hip, but she has overcome these handicaps and gets around as well as anyone.
